The Challenge

Client Goal

This client sought to accommodate a growing team with a vast, adaptable area, ensuring optimal work conditions throughout the office. With abundant space in the new location, the floor plan required designs that could be easily reconfigured or expanded upon.

Problems Solved

Our team designed an adaptable office that meets the demands of expanding groups with interactive workspaces. We collaborated closely with the client and sound masking partner to enhance sound management throughout the spacious office, ensuring optimal work efficiency for all team members.

Project Summary

When ArchPoint Group envisioned a vast new space that could accommodate the company's rapid internal growth, it was crucial to find a partner who could turn that vision into a reality. Our talented people and efficient processes gave this client the confidence that our team was fit to fulfill that vision.

After multiple meetings to collaborate on the right solutions, we narrowed down selections to solutions that would create a productive, functional workplace and represent the client's unique culture. Throughout the two floors of space, we furnished various configurations of height-adjustable benching systems, private offices, open-office meeting spaces, and much more.

With growth and collaboration being two important factors with this large open space, sound management was something we needed to take into consideration. We worked closely with our sound masking partner on site to ensure the speaker layout would fully cover each of the many workspaces and allow everyone to work productively without distracting others.

Height-adjustability was important to them to attract and retain the top talent. We were able to use a mix of our height-adjustable workstations to provide them with a modern office and give them the ability to step away and collaborate with their teammates when needed.”

Excellence

Design Features

The large open workspace provides tons of real estate on their walls to add motivational quotes and wall art that promotes a diverse work culture. These graphics can be seen from nearly every workspace across the main work floor and second-floor workstations and is a daily reminder of their company goals and strong team culture.

The unique architectural features of the building gave our team some flexibility to create inspiring collaborative workspaces such as the banquette booths along the railing of the second floor or incorporating glass wall huddle rooms in the center of the first floor. With so much real estate there were lots of opportunities to include spaces for this client's team to connect and share ideas.

Since the building was new, the project budget was spread out across many different partners. We were able to maximize the furniture budget by using existing furniture throughout certain workspaces and provide similar solutions through our partnered manufacturer line of furniture. Using this furniture line allowed us to quickly make adjustments to the design or any issues that occurred as the project progressed.

Results

This project embodies what can be achieved when vision meets expertise. Our collaborative process throughout the year-long project instilled the confidence needed that the final result would exceed the client's expectations. The feedback was overwhelmingly positive, particularly commending the CultureSpace installation team for their professionalism and efficiency as the project was completed. ArchPoint Group is now equipped with a space that showcases their unique culture through the use of inspirational wall art and a collaborative and adaptable floor plan that will last for years to come.
