Order in the Court

Texas-based law firm, Thomas J Henry, partnered with CultureSpace when they only had a single location in San Antonio and two offices in Corpus Christi. They were looking to modernize the space with new furniture and optimize their floor plans for their anticipated growth and expansion. The client acquired a 25,000 sq ft space in San Antonio and, over a 3 year span at that location, furnished roughly 150 private and open-office workstations, in addition to conference rooms, break areas, and reception lounge.

Through accomplishing their goals with their San Antonio and Corpus Christi locations, Thomas J Henry continued to partner with CultureSpace as they expanded into new markets including Houston, Austin, Irving, and Guaynabo, Puerto Rico.

As they expanded into new markets, the client would rework their floor plans and move certain furniture pieces to other locations using CultureSpace's office furniture relocation services. This was a cost-effective solution to maximizing the floor plan and their budget to set up each location with furniture that would improve workflow.

The transition from cubicle systems to open-office benching allowed them to create a more collaborative environment, seat more team members, and complement their work hard, play hard culture.”

Design Features

Out with the Old, In with the New

Before working with CultureSpace, their outdated, bulky cubicle systems made it hard to see who was in the office and limited collaboration. They opted to update their space with benching systems which greatly opened up each of their offices, maximized their floor plan, modernized space to appeal to younger talent, and allowed room for them to grow within their existing spaces.

Each attorney has four paralegals and the furniture space planning was strategically laid out to improve their workflow and allow team members to freely connect.

Results

Thomas J Henry has remained a longtime client and has seen explosive growth throughout each major metro in Texas. Throughout our partnership, we have furnished approximately 60,000 sq ft of office space and installed more than 200 workstations across 6 locations. We worked to understand how they operate as a firm to provide each location with optimal solutions for them to work efficiently, continue growing as a company, and expand into new markets.
